Winemaking Notes

First, the grapes were brought into the winery on 9/03/15 mid morning while the fruit was still cool. Fruit was destemmed to a tank and then cold soaked for a few days. Yeast was then added to the must and the fermentation really started to get going on the 9th. Grapes were then pressed and the juice spent some time in tank going through Malolactic fermentation before being transferred to barrels. Where they sat aging before being bottled almost a year later.
